SATURDAY EVENING, AUGUST 1, 1903.

FLIGHT TO THE SOUTH .- Fleeing from the wrath of an Illinois mob and declaring that the South is the place for the negro, three men of that race arrived in Macon, Ga., yesterday on their way from Danville, Ill., to Florida. The re-fugees are William Herbert, Samuel Evans and Jacob Anderson, and that they are now alive, they assert, can be considered more good fortune that any willingness of the Danville mob to spare the lives Herbert, the leader of the tric, is a bright colored mulatto and is quite well educated. Four years ago, he says, after lisucated. Four years ago, he says, after listening to alluring pictures, drawn by a Boston negro, of social equality, easy times and the great love northerners had for the downtrodden black man, he decided to quit the land of his birth and emigrate to this paradise. What he heard the black man from Boston say and what he found to be the real facts are entirely different. "For nearly four years," he said, "I have been constantly reminded of the color of my skin, and have had all kinds of insults and abuse heaped upon kinds of insults and abuse heaped upon me. I am a bricklayer by trade, and alme. I am a bricklayer by trade, and although I am considered a good workman.
I was ostracised by the unions, and wasdischarged on several occasions because white mgn would not work with me.
And yet these are the same people who make such a howl when a negro is lynehed in the South. All this talk of eating at a white man's tab's and sitting in the same new with life at church is hot air. same pew with him at church is hot air. In small towns where there are only two or three negroes this might possibly occur, but in those places the negro is considered the same as a wild man from Borneo in a 10-cent side show.
